

Big News

www.bignews.co.uk

YOU MAKE THE HEADLINE

THE END OF AN ERA AT SHEFFIELD BOOZER

GOOD FROTHY HEAD: Kish shows off his curly hair to Craig, left, and a totally innocent Andy Holliday, who neither took part in nor condoned the pair's alleged sordid antics

Pint-sized barman was my 'perfect puller' – landlady

HADFIELD landlady Tracy Fowler last night denied rumours of a sordid fling with barman Kish Gokaraju – but admitted that she will be sorry to see him leave.

Kish has quit the Crookesmoor watering hole under a cloud after an alleged love-triangle involving timid Tracy and South African pump supremo Craig.

With husband Paul standing in close proximity, looking hard, Tracy said: "The rumours are total rubbish, but I'm sorry that Kish has quit after three-and-a-half years."

Amid howls of laughter from the locals, she added: "He has always been a really hard-working member of staff. What a guy."

KISH: I'VE HADDDY NUFF!

KISH GOKARAJU has thrown in the bar towel – and quit the Hadfield amid a frenzy of rumours about his love-life.

Officially, the 5th year medic has left to "concentrate on his finals", but sources at the end of the bar have suggested that Kish's friendly flirting with colleague Craig had led to a rift with their landlady boss. Mild-mannered Tracy is understood to have taken "quite a shine" to the notoriously lazy Man United fan. One Hadfield regular chuckled: "There's trouble brewing."

EXCLUSIVE

KISH AND MAKE-UP: And a wig, and a rather fetching jacket. Oh, and don't forget the shades. Looking sharp.

Kish-chase spirals into sordid love triangle